LOUISVILLE, Ky – A survey is being undertaken to see what independent businesses people in Southwest Louisville would like to see in their communities.

The survey is being handled by the Louisville Independent Business Association (LIBA) which is known for it's "Keep Louisville Weird" campaign. LIBA, which has been based in the Highlands, is working with the Southwest Dream Team and others to find out what businesses are wanted in areas like Shively, Pleasure Ridge Park, and Valley Station.

Southwest Dream Team President Vince Jarboe says studies have found that Southwest Louisville has enough resources to support expansion of independent business.
